The theme of this year's four essays - all by honor students selected from among the top 10 percent of the class - is "...Like a circle in the water which never ceases to enlarge itself..." from Shakespeare.

Essayists in the order of their appearance on the program are Wendy Rose Blackman "Answer Me in one Word"; Renee Joan Dubocq "How Far That Little Candle Throws His Beams"; Dennis Robert Houle "Nothing Will Come of Nothing"; and Richard Dana Sheaff "...Must Give Us Pause".

The exercises will open with a

"Upon What Meat Doth This Our Caesar Feed That He Is Grown So Great..."

The year was 44 B.C. There was plenty of government regulation in those days, but probably no federal meat inspection. Upon what meat did J. Caesar feed? We think nothing but the best — the equivalent of U.S. Prime.

What grade of meat does the CO-OP sell? Not U.S. Prime and here's why. Meat animals are so designed that there isn't anywhere near enough Prime to go around. As a result, only the Armed Services and the most expensive hotels make a practice of buying U.S. Prime.

But you can be sure that the CO-OP does the next best thing: we buy nothing but the best practical grade — U.S. Government-Inspected Top Choice.

What's more, we cut our meat expertly and trim it adequately. And we will cheerfully cut any piece to your individual requirements. A delicious meal needs only one more quality — your own skillful preparation. And you then have a meal fit for anyone but Caesar.

For the best available meats, cut right and trimmed right, shop at the sign of the "ANDOVER CO-OP."

Fling Out the Banner

Fling out the banner! let it float
Skyward and seaward, high and wide;

The cross on which the Saviour died.

St. Mary's School at Burlington, N. H., was founded by Bishop Doane. He was requested to write this appropriate hymn for a special flag raising ceremony in 1848. It has since become "the hymn of the Christian flag," and is often linked with the pledge to the flag of the Church, and to the Saviour for whose Kingdom it stands, one brotherhood, uniting all mankind in service and in love.

The Andover Council of Churches elected officers at its annual meeting May 28, at Free Church.

The Rev. J. Allyn Bradford is president. Other officers are vice president, Henry C. Becker; secretary, Mrs. John Hall Jr.; and treasurer, Frederick Fitzgerald.

tion more specific. The area is in South Andover.

The latter item required two votes and considerable discussion by the Committee. Member John S. Sullivan wanted to exclude this area, to give the matter of a specific site more thought. But he and member Vincent P. Davey were outvoted by Members William A. Doherty, Milton J. Meyers and Chairman Robert McIntyre.

The discussion revolved around selecting a site on the west side of Route 28, as opposed to the original desire for over 40 acres on the east side of the road, on land owned by the town, White and D'Annolfo.

It was brought out that the land on the east side of the street might cost twice as much as that on the west side of the major highway, and the matter of easier access was also emphasized.

However, objections to designating either site brought about a stalemate, until it was suggested that Scotland District be substituted - a larger area, embracing all usable sites in that section of town. It apparently was left up to the Selectmen and Land Acquisition Committee to decide which of the sites is most suitable.

In another discussion relating to the Selectmen, it was agreed to meet with that Board next Monday night at 10 p.m., to discuss the over-all plan for use of the high school area for recreation.

Although Supt. of Schools Edward I. Erickson had received specifications from the architects, who urged putting the first section of work out to bid immediately, Town Manager Thomas E. Duff was reported to have informed Erickson that the Selectmen wish to go over the entire subject.

Dr. Milton J. Meyers, with some affirmative comment from other members, asserted his belief that there would be a lot of delaying action, with the result that nothing much would be accomplished in the area.

The article appropriating funds for the project require that the Selectmen and Finance Committee approve the plans. This was originally proposed as a way of assuring the town that the area could be useful for town recreation as well as school purposes, it is understood.

At The Library

Coming Events JUNE

- 7 Vacation loans in effect for adults.
16 Last Saturday open for the summer weeks.

Vacation Privileges

The library is offering readers an extended loan period for books which are not in special demand. A borrower may take as many as he wishes of books in fiction, history, travel, poetry, essays, cookery, etc. and not need to think of returning them until September 15. However, this privilege is allowed only as the reader makes a request for the vacation loan. Otherwise, the books will become due in the normal three week period.

Children are allowed to take their books for the summer beginning with the end of school. If parents accompany them, children may take an unlimited number of books for this extended loan period. Vacationists always find this a very happy arrangement for those long evenings and rainy days that are sure to come.

No book on required reading lists or on special Bookworm Lists may be borrowed for the summer. Books must be at least a year old before they come into this special privilege.

Summer Hours

A word ahead to those who visit the library on Saturday. On June 23 the Memorial Hall Library, adult and children's rooms, will be closed and will remain closed on all Saturdays until the week of September 10. The main library will be open as usual except for this one day.

Framed Prints

If you did not visit the library while the new purchase of framed prints was on view you may wish to see which of the trial selections were selected by the library's readers. The selections are Autumn Oaks, by Inness; Golden Afternoon, by Hassam; The D'Avray, Corot; Gypsy woman with Baby, Modigliani; Dream of provization, Kandinsky; Stone City Wood and Little Sisters by Cassatt. The prints were on display until yesterday at which time they were released for circulation.

Andover families have found the prints to be an exciting venture, and many families change their regularly at the end of the two month loan period. Some have become so attached to a certain painting that they have bought copies and had them framed for their own families to enjoy permanently. Several have been copies by ambitious and talented borrowers.

All prints are loaned for a period of two months, for a very small charge. One at a time to a family, with no renewals or reservation permitted, is the rule. Just before the two month period is at an end the library sends out reminders of the date on which the print must be returned or a fine will be charged.

There are sixty-three prints now in the collection.

Garden Books

A special display of garden books was arranged for the members of the gardening class offered by the Extension who met last evening at the library. Members of the general reading public may wish to see the collection, from which books are now ready for circulation.

Here are a few titles that should tempt anyone with a plot of ground and love of the outdoors: All About Vines; And Hedges; Plants, Brilmayer; Landscaping; For Modern Living; Sunset Magazine; Garden Design; Creative Gardening Without Work; Small Ground Covers; Foley; Miniature Roses; Genders; The Complete Books Of Lillies; Rockwell; The Magic Of Landscaping; Highland The Dried-Flower Book; Carolee Dahlias For Everyone; Lehigh Variegated Foliage Plants; Fischer; Growing For Show; Favre; The Complete Encyclopedia Of Favorite Flowers; Johnson and Iris For Ever; Garden Mitchell.

The library subscribes to the following magazines on gardening: Better Homes And Gardens; Flower Grower; House and Garden; Sunset and Popular Gardening; as well as Horticulture.

Strawberry Festival At Historical Society

A strawberry festival in an old American tradition is being planned by the Andover Historical Society for Wednesday, June 20, from 7 to 8:30 p.m.

Mrs. Joseph Tavern and Mrs. Allen Flye have consented to manage the event as they did a similar one so successfully four years ago, at the request of the Society's president, Frederick S. Allis Jr.

Small tables will be set up in the dining room and outdoors on the porch of the Society's Deacon Amos Blanchard House at 97 Main st., and strawberries with ice cream and coffee will be served. For this social occasion, at which families and neighbors can gather for dessert and coffee, Mrs. Waters Kellogg will be the hostess.
